The instructor agrees to receive payment (teaching fee) from Sui Japanese Language Institute no later than the 30th of each month (via the bank account specified to the school).

The institute will only verify the actual teaching hours from the instructor's attendance sheet at Sui Japanese Language Institute or from recorded teaching videos in the case of online classes.

*Instructors are not eligible to request advance payment for teaching fees from the institution.

- (4) While instructors are assigned to teaching at Sui Japanese Language Institute, they may accept teaching assignments elsewhere, but these must not affect the courses they are currently teaching at Sui Japanese Language Institute. This includes, for example, adjusting previously agreed-upon teaching schedules with the institute.

(When instructor has a course with the institute and accepts teaching assignments elsewhere, these must not coincide with the times agreed upon with and must not affect the institute's courses in any way.)

*On average, a regular course takes no more than 3 months (16 sessions / 3-4 months).

- (5) The instructor has no right to contact students directly by phone, Line, Facebook or other applications regarding teaching or special requests such as class cancellation, etc. Sui Japanese Language Institute will handle this alone.
- (6) The instructor conducts teaching only according to the curriculum set by the institute, with the following conditions for leave of absence (class cancellation):
- 6.1 Leave of absence must be notified to the Sui Japanese Language Institute at least one week in advance, or no less than one day prior, and arrangements will be made to provide make-up sessions for students.
- In the event that an instructor is absent without prior notice, or notifies less than one day before the session, the Sui Japanese Language Institute will consider each case individually. If the institute deems it inappropriate, actions may be taken, such as deducting teaching hours.
- 6.2 In cases where a student cancels a session less than two hours in advance, the institute will contact to inform instructor of the cancellation and pay for one hour of teaching fee.
- (7) Attendance requirements for instructors.
- 7.1 Instructor should arrive at the institute 10 minutes before the start of the session.
- 7.2 In case of emergencies, instructors may be late by no more than 15 minutes and must notify the institute every time. If an instructor is more than 30 minutes late, one hour of teaching time will be deducted from their fee, and the instructor must make up the missed teaching time for the students.
- (8) Instructors are required to promise the Sui Japanese Language Institute that they will not engage in inappropriate conduct, such as contacting students directly with them or accepting teaching assignments without going through the institute. If the school discovers such an incident, the following actions will be taken:
- 8.1 They were summoned for questioning and given a warning.
- 8.2 Inquire about and cancel all existing contracts with the institution for all courses.
- (9) Once a contract is agreed upon, the instructor is responsible for teaching the entire course and cannot cancel the teaching assignment before the course is completed.
